information you otherwise would include in the notes to your financial statements? Why or why not? If yes, how would that increase, diminish, or otherwise change the notes' usefulness to investors, creditors, and other financial statement users?
Do you expect regulatory, legal, or audit consequences that would affect your ability to consider materiality when selecting information to be disclosed in notes to financial statements? Please explain.		Completed
How would you disclose information in comparative financial statements if your assessments of materiality differed in different years?		Completed
Should the Board eliminate from the Accounting Standards Codification phrases like "an entity shall at a minimum provide" and other wording that could appear to limit an entity's discretion to omit immaterial disclosures? Are there particular	no	Completed

Topics or Sections in which those changes should not be made? Are there additional paragraphs within the Accounting Standards Codification in which the wording is particularly restrictive and is not identified in Appendix B of this proposed Update? If so, please identify them.
Do you agree with the proposed amendment that would explicitly state that the omission of an immaterial required disclosure is not an accounting error? Why or why not?	no. I am a small investor, but I do read the financial reports of the companies I invest in, and changing the definition of what is material to make it easier for companies to hide information, is NOT a good idea. These notes are often the best clues we have to what is going on and whether we will lose our hard-earned savings by investing in a company, or not.	Completed
Are there considerations other than those discussed in this proposed Update that would apply to not-for-profit entities?		Completed
